Self-Determination of Peoples in Historical Perspective

Exploratory Workshop
17 May 2019, University of Tartu

Programme

Friday, 17 May

Venue: Institute of Philosophy and Semiotics, Faculty of Humanities, Jakobi 2-336

9:00 - 9:10 Opening of the workshop: Pärtel and Eva Piirimäe (University of Tartu)
Chair: Pärtel Piirimäe

9:10 - 10:00 Ben Holland (University of Nottingham), Pufendorf, the Composite Polity, and the Self-Determination of Peoples

10:00 - 10:50 Eva Piirimäe (University of Tartu), Self-Determination of Peoples, Popular Sovereignty and (the Principle of) Nationality

10:50-11:20 Coffee break
Chair: Eva Piirimäe

11:20 - 12:10 Edward Castleton (University of Franche-Comté), Anarchist Anthropologies of the State and the Nation: from Proudhon to Graeber

12:10 - 13:00 László Bence Bari (Central European University/ Österreichische Akademie der Wissenschaften), In between Concepts of Freedom: Self-Determination and the Czech(oslovak) National Movement, 1917-1919

13:00-14.30 Lunch break
Chair: Marju Luts-Sootak (University of Tartu)

14:30-15:20 Hent Kalmo (University of Tartu), The Myth of the Standard of Civilization

15:20-16:10 Tom Sparks (Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law, Heidelberg), Beyond “Internal” and “External”: Legitimacy and Legality in Self-Determination’s Claims

16.10- 16.30 Coffee break

16:30 - 17.00 David Armitage (Harvard University/ Wissenschaftskolleg zu Berlin), Concluding Remarks

This event has been supported by the Centre of Excellence in Estonian Studies (European Union, European Regional Development Fund) and is related to research projects IUT20-5 and IUT20-39 (Estonian Ministry of Education and Research).